

the new human 2.0™

CREATION AT SECOND TIER as THE NEW HUMAN 2.0™

Sarah McIntyre© 2007

The concept of creation at second tier (using Spiral Dynamics® and or becoming The New Human) is all about living with healthy ego and at same time less fear with choice. It is something many have been 'trying' to master.

What are the steps though to actually seeing and living a new life when you so desperately want this? You have tried acceptance and forgiveness and failed every time (even though you think you have been able to do this), you have chosen to lead the way in your life, you have gotten yourself healthy, you may have left the country to begin a new life?

How do we really experience a new world of different people in our life and situations that are not more of the old 'wound mate' business and relationship drama's? Is it really possible by staying where you and just working through BEING the grandest version of yourself?

It seems so many people still get caught in their Level 6/green meme thinking and way of being without even realising this and this is what limits us. This concept is most definitely the biggest hurdle as we transition to living at second tier and can take some time so be easy on yourself.

The ways we live this out are mainly by not being willing to request what we want and to accept what life brings us thinking there is a lesson in what we are experiencing. If we live like this with no real sense of choice having gone through transcending our strong level 5/orange meme action oriented way of living - where we made it all happen with direct intention. We will most likely be always working through something with someone because we have disowned the part of ourselves that can choose what we wish to experience. We will always bring it back to the "I" and sometimes all the "I" has to do is serve a bigger mission that of consciousness and re commit no matter what fears or discomfort you are experiencing. This is not to be confused with the new age thinking of 'we create our reality'. The distinction here is we combine the good bits of orange meme thinking, green meme living and being with our innate service to all of humanity. But going back and really believing in what you know will best serve you from a higher frame this lifetime is worthwhile. It might be a union with a great man walking side by side serving consciousness, it might be fulfilling a dream to create a new concept for all humanity, it might be to have a family and re-define motherhood – whatever you feel in your heart is where you will be most of service that also fulfills your heart's desires. It is courageous to stand tall in your belief of yourself and key with this work as the "I" must be fulfilled alongside of our work to serve, we are not here to martyr ourselves to causes that is so 'old school' spirituality! We are also not here to become narcissistic personal development junkies under the illusion of service and second tier 'thinking'. You must live this and really watch your commitment to consciousness.

We also mistake that we think the information in our life is something that WE must have to now learn from and maybe even teach. Many of us think that what we are facing then must be useful for many. It can become our power source. This brings me to the next obstacle seen with many. Whilst we are still associated with the "I" and our narcissism then what we are doing in life - for example overcoming an autoimmune disease (funny I use my own example here but so true) we then think what we find maybe relevant to many. It might be and we maybe able to serve many using this but does the information actually only give our ego a sense of power? Does this just keep re-creating an egoic sense of self that looks like it is serving others but really feeds our narcissism? For many this is a cycle and there is always something they are researching and then find power within that becomes the next thing they must be being called to do in the world. Could that just be another way to stay separate and in duality and away from oneness? Could that be done with also a deep commitment to consciousness - maybe it can when that happens then it is most useful and effective. If it is just something to give your "I" more sense of self then be watchful as this will only build your ego not serve humanity.

Imagine if we can still work with our own evolution but can now serve something bigger there fore can live without attracting more of the same? You will know if you are in this space by what you attract. If we attract more of the same wound mate unions, clients, business opportunities than your energy system is still clogged in ego and narcissism. When that ceases to come to you and there is space then we know a new commitment may be what is driving you. That is how you will know what path you are on. You will deal with the wound olgy in a new way most likely not participating and expressing at the same time. Doing this means clearing all that has gone before. It means addressing our wounds and really choosing to live another way of life. It means disassociating from ego as much as is possible. It means having a higher mission beyond self and actualising this with a group rather than alone.

This will mean you may loose much of the old but it also may mean you create enough space around you for the old to transform too. It means staying true to your conviction when all else seems to doubt it. It means being in nothing ness and feeling the old pass and die within you and outside of you. It means you can dream big and state what you want in your life. Simultaneously allow life to bring this to you. It means you combine the greatest of Level 5/ orange meme and dreaming and creating what you seek in life but as an undertone to this is your deep commitment to serving consciousness so you at the same time allow life to unfold. It is a paradox as you do choose what is for your highest good and can be specific and simultaneously you trust and truly allow this to grow around you in the form it takes.

Alongside of this we must face our denial and our fears – our fragility also to really 'seeing' who we are. Are we conning ourselves regarding our spirituality? Is this only in our head and not felt in the body? Are we really committed to the greatness of I AM? Can we say the words of what we believe out loud? Can we speak this in the world around others who are disbelievers? Are we able to express our wants and not care if they do not come true but be brave enough to dream? Are we taking action in our lives to create new outcomes? Doing things differently everyday not just saying this but acting in most moments from a true intentional space? Are we still responding to our ego and surrounding ourselves with people and situations that validate this?

This is what we must do to create a new world not only for ourselves but for the people that live with us in this world.

The spiritual path at this time is one we create, through us being our energetic self in every moment. Not just as a state but as a deep stage of development without ego living as our Authentic Self. When that authentic self is strong within you, you feel this surge run through you – the energetic vibration is emotive and strong and it calls you to act from a place of deep integrity in all that you do. When this happens for you, you cannot stop – you must go forth. That creative impulse is what so many of us are feeling at this time and this is what will create new blue prints or cosmic grooves and this is what we are creating as human spiritual beings. It is connecting us all that are being called and it is exciting once embraced as not only your world takes a turn for the better but the world beyond ourselves has an opportunity to as well. It also signifies you care about this as much as you care about yourself.